What do you need to do to keep me safe? eg bed rails, people to support me, support with eating and drinking?

The Mental Capacity act has five principles.

1. Presume capacity.
2. People must be given information in a format that they understand. This could be spoken, explained by a family member, written, pictures or easy read.
3. People should not be treated as unable to make a decision for the reason their decision would be considered unwise.
4. In the event of an individual not being able to make a decision, the people around them must make a decision in their best interest.
5. Any decision made in an individual's best interest should be the least restrictive option.

In an emergency, these decisions are usually made by the treating physician.

In a non emergency, this is how to support me to make an informed decision:

Do I have any breathing problems normally?
Do I have any airway issues?

What is the best way to support me with tests and procedures? This could be explaining them to me ahead of time, allowing my family with me or sedation.

How do I normally indicate a choice?

How do I show I'm in pain?

I may behave differently if I am upset, frightened or confused.
This doesn't mean I don't want treatment. When I am upset, the best way to help me is to:
